THANKSGIVING IN GIVING

Once again the axe will fall on many a turkey's neck as the populace of the country prepare to celebrate the feast of Thanksgiving. This feast has been taking place in this nation since that first feast of the Pilgrims.

Thanksgiving 1948 will find the nation giving thanks not only for the bountiful gifts it enjoys, but also for the opportunity it has of helping those countries that are less fortunate.

We are able to give aid through the organization CARE which sends gifts of food and clothing across the seas. When we help CARE we help those starving millions and in turn bring joy to ourselves in knowing that we have brought the happiness of Thanksgiving throughout the world.

Shostakovitch and his Seventh Symphony

Truly important work produced during World War II, with a direct war background, is the Seventh Symphony by the young soviet composer, Dimitri Shostakovitch. Mr. Shostakovitch, called the "Mozart of Modern Russia", is now 42 years of age. His first compositions were written between the ages of 14 and 17.

Expressed in each phrase of the Seventh Symphony is Russia's struggle against the forces of conquest. During the siege of Leningrad, Dimitri Shostakovitch composed this symphony as he was resting from his endless duties as an air raid fire warden. He was also a member of the Leningrad People's Guard Theatre which toured the front lines entertaining the troops with an unexhausting source on energy. Kuybyshev Russia first heard this symphony on March 1, 1942 and from there it was introduced in Moscow, Leningrad, and London.

Shostakovitch's fame spread and early in the spring the National Broadcasting Company in New York began negotiations to bring a copy of this score to New York.

After being photographed on microfilm it was finally brought to New York. On July 19, under the direction of Arturo Toscanini, Dimitri Shostakovitch's Seventh Symphony was first heard in the United States on N.B.C. Symphony. Since then the Seventh Symphony has won wide acclaim throughout the United States and in all the countries of the world.

LA CINEMA

What did you like about the recent movies or shows you have seen? Was it the show or the players or both?

Whether we realize it or not, the play and the players determine our liking for the movie.

If you saw the Babe Ruth Story starring Bill Bendix, you met a player who fits the part of that hero of American sports. No doubt you thoroughly enjoyed it.

Why not see Apartment for Peggy with William Holden, Jeanne Crain and Edmund Gwenn, for a hilarious lot of fun. The setting is a college campus.

Perhaps you saw the Passion Play. Because of the sacred character of this play, it was especially well liked. Years of playing the part of Christ, has not lessened the conscientiousness of Joseph Meier, as he takes that sacred part. Again it is the characters represented that determine our liking for a play.

Gertrude (that's my girl friend) and I were cruising along on "cloud eight" when we heard the cry, "There goes Hannan (Theresa, that is) for a touchdown." Now curiosity killed the cat and who am I to be different, so leaving Gertrude, I pulled up a sunbeam and slid down.

Here, what's this! I landed in the middle of the Academy field where it seems the girls had taken over. This was all Greek to me, or should I say Latin, until someone explained the girls had started a football team. After the game, trooping off the field I saw Theresa Hannan, Peggy Bowers, Jacque Servick, Theresa Bowman, Shirley Marier, Joan Stillinger, Sally Johnson and Patti Gustafson. Well, girls will be girls.

After this I hopped on a flying leaf and landed in the middle of the I.H.M. library where I found Arlie Albeck busily looking for "Three Little Women." Why, Arlie, I never thought it of you!

Peeping out the library door, I beheld Art Christensen on his way to biology class, so I decided to attend. Unfortunately (for Art) I arrived before him and just as he was charging through the door he got in the way of my foot. The three point landing he made would make any pilot green with envy.

As the class was progressing a little slowly, I fell asleep (along with some of the other members as

Letters Recall History of Fort

Announcement of the building of a new school brings thoughts of the beginning of the present school. We know that the buildings belonged to the old Fort Sherman and what a history they have.

Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. W. Merriam, whose uncle, Colonel Henry Merriam was the first commander of the fort, we are able to print letters written by men and officers of Fort Sherman.

The following letter was written by General W. T. Sherman on one of his visits to the fort:

Headquarters of the Army, Fort Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, August 1, 1883.

Respectfully referred to the Hon. Sec. of War, Washington, D. C. asking his special attention. General Miles, Dept. Commander is personally present and tells me that he has no funds available for this purchase and that no barracks and quarters allotment has been made in his Dept. In this case the whole appropriation must be subject to the order of the Secretary.

Attention is invited to the cheapness of lumber at this place, and in no place in the country will so small a requisition of money accomplish so much good. Were the money subject to my order, I would approve an order on the spot. As it is, I ask the Secretary to approve and to order the Quartermaster General to provide the money as soon as possible that work may be done before winter.

(Signed) W. T. Sherman,
General.

If Thou Wilt Be Perfect

What do you know about the religious orders in the Church? Yes, they have been long established and supply workers in every field of Christian endeavor. There are numerous orders, each with their own special work. But how many of us know more, even about the religious orders in our parish.

The first of this series of articles will be a brief history of the religious orders represented in our school and parish.

The Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, had their beginning in a little log cabin in the small town of Monroe, Michigan in 1845.

Reverend Louis Gillet, C. S. R. seeing the need for Catholic schools among the French Canadians who had settled in Michigan, spoke to Teresa Maxis of his desire to establish a congregation of women who would undertake that work.

On September 8, 1845, Miss Teresa Maxis left Baltimore for Monroe. She with two other young ladies, Ann Schaaf and Teresa Renauld formed the nucleus of the new community. The habit was designed from the French Sisters of Notre Dame.

Today there are two other foundations of the Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, one at Philadelphia and the other at Scranton, Pa.

The first Sisters in Coeur d'Alene arrived September 15, 1903, from Scranton, Pa.

Here's Mine

ed Directs Day
What's Yours?

Have you a collection of match folders? An assortment of this kind can prove to be quite interesting.

My father started the collection which I now claim as my hobby during the first World War when he was in the navy. He had folders from France, England and the eastern part of the United States. He continued this until my eldest brother fell heir to hundreds of these small folders.

While in the Air Corps, he kept up the collection in the United States, while my other brother acquired folders in Canada and I brought some from Idaho, Montana and Washington. This family collection now numbers around a thousand match covers, no two of which are alike.

This is my hobby, what is yours?

What's New

... in the New Look

Characteristic as the bright colors of the autumn leaves are the multi-colored plaid jackets of the high school boys. Brown, green and other colors are the favorite combinations. Then there are individualists like Art Christensen who prefer fire engine red.

In a more subdued combination of colors, appear the girls in their new length jumpers and white blouses. Added to these is a flourish of color; maroon, brown, yellow and red in the new coats worn by Patricia Miller, Helenmarie Nielsen, Barbara LeBlanc, Beverly Oke, and The-esa Hannan.

Mary Margaret Frickel sets the fall fashion in sweaters in a long-sleeved V necked bright weave. A bit of fashion is Bernita Garvey's yellow blouse with a peplum.

With the approach of winter appear the popular boots and stocking caps. Shirley Boltz is wearing snowy white boots trimmed in white fur, while Betty Ruth Cunningham, Elva Balentine and Patricia Clark don white and green stocking caps.

Library Snafu

Why, Sister Charisse!! What happened in here? Were the boys playing football or something? It . . . looks like a cyclone struck. Is this the library? With that conglomeration of books screaming at you from all corners of the room, this certainly can't be the den of silence.

What! You say you did this, you? Our own librarian, but . . . but how could you? Think of the calamity, think of our reading, a library is essential to mankind, how could you . . . ?

Oh, making filing cards, but I thought we already had some?

Mother Vincent would say). But I was soon awakened by a clear voice, belonging to Roy Gustafson, proclaiming, "Insects don't carry umbrellas." Hmm, wonder how he came to that conclusion!!

Just at that moment a certain Press Club member came in to announce a meeting and to check up on the "Frosh" members. It seems she had a problem—Pat Coyle, girl or boy?

Perching on Mary Crowley's shoulder who had incidentally been making dire threats in typing I class, I was soon off to the press meeting. Along the way, I saw some of my old friends; Bernita Garvey making weird noises that were supposed to sound like "Bloop-Bleep"; Mary Frances Rassel trying to explain an article with a mouthful; and Pat Crowder wandering about singing "Theresa".(?)

The meeting was called to order and after several points had been cleared up, Alice Gribnau brought up the problem of heads. It was decided by the whole club that heads were necessary in newspaper writing.

"Jeorgie, oh Jeorgie!" Oh, oh, there's Gertrude, so I'd better go before she gets ahold of me. 'Bye now.

Lil' J. (for Jeorge) Gremlin

Yes, I suppose it is nice to have them up to date.

This must be quite a job, isn't it? Well why didn't you put out the old red flag sooner? I'll go round up the gang and see what we can do.
